- Location
- Description

Young person's applying for their first job should emphasize their project work, because it comes nearest to actual experience of work.

3. Experience

It is very important to choose from your total experience that which best meets the job requirements. We just indicate nature of experience gained from each position. When you write about experience, mention the present position first and all the previous posts in reverse order.

Include the following in this section:

determines the choice of the preposition.

She listened to the lecture attentively.

The dog barked at the shadow.

When these verbs occur with other prepositions, the meaning of the verb changes, e.g.,

He was looking for (= searching) a house.

Some other verb + preposition combinations are:

think of, dream of, believe in, object to, remind of,

depend on, prepare for, hope for, attend to, blame for

Prepositions whose choice is determined by the following noun/ noun phrase are chosen for their appropriateness to the message to be conveyed. Compare, for example, the sentences

- (iii) Before the names of a language -
 - 1 I don't know French.
 - 2 Hindi is not difficult for us.
- (iv) Before proper nouns of persons or places -
 - 1 Jawahar Lal Nehru was the first Prime Minister of India.
 - 2 Kalidas was a great dramatist.
 - 3 Shopal is the capital of our state.
 - 4 Bihar is suffering on account of flood.
 - 5 Switzerland is a beautiful country.
- (v) Before school, church, hospital and prison, if the sentence is about their primary function - School for learning, church for praying, hospital for medical treatment.
 - 1 James goes to church every Sunday.

but follow it immediately with a translation or explanation.

You cannot translate words in isolation.

Words get their meaning from how they are used in each situation - what we call their context. You must do a contextual translation.

Use a bilingual dictionary if it is available. The best dictionary is one which defines the word in its various contexts.

Be careful when using understatements and euphemisms (mild or inoffensive words which are used in the place of harsh or hurtful words)

One has to be careful while using linking words such as "although", "but", "from", "even", as they are used to show the relationships between the words in your sentences. Getting these small words wrong can alter entirely the sense of the sentence.

Formation of Adjectives -

Adjectives can be classified into two categories - original and composed from other words. Original adjectives are independent while some adjectives are formed from nouns or verbs.

1. Original adjectives - Example -

- There are no tall buildings in the village.
- John has sold the old house.
- Dr. Abdul Kalam was a very gentle person.
- He drove in the night through a thick forest.

2. Adjectives formed from other words :

(i) Some adjectives are composed from nouns. Example-

- TATA wants to establish a Car factory in West Bengal.
- Woolen dresses are generally warm in winter.
- Some people are born with silver spoon in their mouth.
- His grand father is ill and bedridden.
- Children were laughing at the hairless head of the old man.
- The Governor has appointed a five-man committee to solve the problem.
- Government rewarded the courageous police officer

In yet another case the English preposition is different from the Hindi vibhakti. The most difficult vibhakti is a small word 'Se' which has many equivalents in English eg. With, by, for, from, since and many more. In English we have to choose the correct preposition which is fixed for the verb.

However, there is a short list of commonly used prepositions.

About, above, after, against, at, before, below, between, by, down, during, for, from, in, into, of, off, on, over, since, through, till, to, towards, up, upon, with, without, within.

Observe the following sentences:

We talk of a welfare state and of democracy and socialism.

This does not apply to countries which are industrially undeveloped.

The underlined words in the above sentences are Prepositions. Prepositions are connecting words which are placed before a noun / noun phrase and show the relationship between the noun/noun phrase and something else that has gone before in the sentence. The relationship shown is of various types, for example relationship of occasion, place, time, direction, London (1879) to establish a reputation as a writer of fiction and a critic of poetry - Poems that received mixed reviews by critics. He worked as an art reviewer (1881), lectured in the United States and Canada (1882), and lived in Paris (1883). He also lectured in Britain and Ireland (1883 - 1884). In 1888, he published The Happy Prince and Other Tales, fairy-stories written for his two sons. He died of cerebral meningitis on November 30, 1900, penniless, in a cheap Paris hotel.

This is the story of a giant who returns to his home after many years to discover that children have been using his garden to play in. This upsets the giant, who erects a wall to keep the children out. The cold winter refuses to give in to the brilliance of spring without the children. One day, the giant notices sunshine coming in through his window. He discovers that children have crawled through a hole in the wall, entered the garden and climbed into the trees, making them blossom. In the farthest corner of the garden, the giant notices one little boy who is crying because he cannot climb up into a tree. The giant helps the boy up and discovers that his life is much more pleasant this way. The children once again enjoy the garden and springtime fills the giant's yard. The story any more time talking to us. We protested. But she ignored our protests. She lay peacefully in bed praying and telling her beads. Even before we could suspect, her lips stopped moving and the rosary fell from her lifeless fingers. A peaceful pallor spread on her face and we knew that she was dead. We lifted her off the bed and, as is customary, laid her on the ground and covered her with a red shroud. After a few hours of mourning we left her alone to make arrangements for her funeral. In the evening we went to her room with a crude stretcher to take her to be cremated. The sun was setting and had lit her room and verandah with a blaze of golden light. We stopped half-way in the courtyard. All over the verandah and in her room right up to where she lay dead and stiff wrapped in the red shroud, thousands of sparrows sat scattered on the floor. There was no chirruping. We felt sorry for the birds and my mother fetched some bread for them. She broke it into little crumbs, the way my grandmother used to, and threw it to them. The sparrows took no notice of the bread. When we carried my grandmother's corpse off, they flew away quietly. Next morning the sweeper swept the bread crumbs into the dustbin.

live in the city and we were constantly together. She used to wake me up in the morning and get me ready for school. She said her morning prayer in a monotonous sing-song while she bathed and dressed me in the hope that I would listen and get to know it by heart; I listened because I loved her voice but never bothered to learn it. Then she would fetch my wooden slate which she had already washed and plastered with yellow chalk, a tiny earthen ink-pot and a red pen, tie them all in a bundle and hand it to me. After a breakfast of a thick, stale chapatti with a little butter and sugar spread on it, we went to school. She carried several stale chapattis with her for the village dogs. My grandmother always went to school with me because the school was attached to the temple. The priest taught us the alphabet and the morning prayer. While the children sat in rows on either side of the verandah singing the alphabet or the prayer in a chorus, my grandmother sat inside reading the scriptures. When we had both finished, we would walk back together. This time the village dogs would meet us at the temple door. They followed us to our home growling and fighting with each other for the chapattis we threw to them. When my parents were comfortably settled in ...two kinds of conflict in the story: between humans and nature, and between humans themselves. How are these conflicts illustrated?

Answer: In the initial part of the story the episode of rainfall turning into a hailstorm shows the conflict between man and nature. When it is a rainfall the man is very happy dreaming about happy days ahead. But once the rain turns into hail the man is ruing the happening of hailstorm. The way Lencho is feeling sad and gloomy after the storm appropriately projects the conflict of the nature and the man. In the later part of the story when Lencho blames post office people for stealing part of the money then it is showing the conflict between humans. Although nothing is written what happened after that, but anybody can imagine the mental situation when postmaster read the letter.

There are different names in different parts of the world for storms, depending on their nature. Can you match the names in the box with their descriptions below, and fill in the blanks?

gale, whirlwind, cyclone, typhoon

...helped in getting a better harvest, resulting in more prosperity, so Lencho compared them with new coins.

Question 3: How did the rain change? What happened to Lencho's fields?

Answer: The rain changed to hailstorm. All the crop in the field was destroyed.

Question 4: What were Lencho's feelings when the hail stopped?

Answer: After the destruction caused by hail, Lencho was shattered. He could see a bleak future for him and his family. He was worried about lack of food for the coming year.

Question 5: Who or what did Lencho have faith in? What did he do?

Answer: Lencho had faith in God. He believed that God could see everything and would help him out. Lencho wrote a letter to the God, explained his situation and asked for some money from God.

Question 6: Who read the letter?

Answer: The postmaster read the letter.

Question 7: What did the postmaster do then?

Answer: Postmaster was deeply touched by Lencho's faith in the God. The
